THE SPRAY MURDERS-A BODY FOUND,-On Sunday afternoon the body of a man was discovered lying m the beach at Port Morris. From a large hole at the back part of the head, as though made by a pistol or murket ball, the deceased was supposed to be one of the murdered men lately belonging to the sloop Spray. The body was put into a wooden case and conveyed to West Farms, where an inquest was held yesterday by Coroner Valentine.

Captain Harry Crittenden, commander of the sloor Lyman Denison, belonging to Guilford, Conn., upon hearing that a body had been found, sent his mute, Mr. Thomas Griswold, who was personally acquainte with the brothers Leete, to identify the body. Coe of the sloop S. H. Seranton, now lying at Harhem, also went to West Farms for the same purpose. Neither was able to recognize the deceased sount of the decomposed state of the body.

Dr. C. D. King of New-York made the post-m examination, and discovered no marks of violence. He was of opinion that the man had met his death by drowning. The hole in his skull was caused by the trepanning operation. If it had been the result of a blow the under part would have been starred, and small particles been found adhering to the brain. The body had been in the water fully six weeks. The deceased was about 35 years of age, 5 feet 9 or 10 inches in hight, and had on, when discovered, a pair of grey trowers, high boots, and two pairs of grey socks Upon taking off the right boot a black necktie was and in it. The inquest is adjourned till Wednesday, at 4 o'clock, to as to enable the friends of Capt. Leete and his brother to come on from Guildford, where they have been telegraphed, for the purpose of identification.

DREDGIEG THE SLIPS .- At low tide many of the alips on the North and East Rivers are nearly empty of water along their inner margins, in consequence of the assumulation of all sorts of mud and dirt, both from the shipping and docks, and the deposits of the tide and sewers. These accumulations are not only an obstruction to the shipping, but they become very offensive and detrimental to the public health, with the approach of the hot reason. The steam-dredges used for cleaning out streams and canals are therefore of great importance in a twofold light, and the lessees of the pumerons wharves have them at present pretty generally engaged in excavating the slips. On the North River, Capt. Hurt and Capt. Orr are at work with the oldfashioned dredges, at the foot of Jay and North Moore

On the East River, Morris & Cummings are at work with their improved machine, dredging out Fulton Fish Market slip, which has become so choked up with offal, sewer mud and street manure, as to speedily destroy the fish confined in the cars, smack wells, and other receptacles for scaly live stock. The machine consists of two scoops, which descend, open, are forced into the mud, by steam power, closed and raised, picking up at each grip an immense mass which is deposited in a seew alongside, and eventually dumped on the West Flats. This ship is to be deepened to 12 feet at

THE House or MERCY .- This institution is an asylum for unfortunate girls, between the ages of 13 and 20. It is purposed to give the House, as much as possible, the character and privacy of a home, designed for both friendless and fallen girls, rather than to provide for the reclamation of vicious adults. There are many gir's who are orphans, and many who are idle and uncontrollable, and such girls cannot be induced to enter an asylum, which is known to receive only the abandoned of all ages, but they will not refuse to be-come inmates of a House of Mercy which offers to them the attractions of a home. There are those, also, who have sinned for a brief season, and would gladly reform, and the House of Mercy furnishes them a grateful refore. During the first year, Mrs. Richmond, through whose exertious the House was established, was persuaded to depart, in some instances, from the above rule as to the age for admission to the House, but the experiment was not attended with beneficial results. The House is situated on the North River, at the foot of Eighty-sixth street. It is large and substantial structure, three stories high, with ment and porticoes both in front and rear, situated on the crown of the bluff that overhangs the water, and commands a splendid prospect far up and down the

The seclusion is all that could be desired, if only the dots between the present purchase and the rai road can be bought. Ten lots go with the Home, the pot bei 125 feet wide, and running through from Eighty-sixth to Eighty-fifth street. The house alone cost, originally, mear $50,000, and is now in very respectable repair. Since its organization, the house has taken care of 187 girls and women, of whom 63 are believed to be doing well; 20 were confirmed drunkards when they were received: 6 have died and 9 are married. The Provisional Bishop of the diocese has visited the House officially for confirmation three times, and at the first visitation, in 1855, nine, at the second, in 1857, eight, and at the last, in 1858, eight were confirmed; in all 25 have publicly joined the church.

This evening a grand concert will be given at the City Assembly Rooms, for the benefit of this excellent charity, when we hope a crowded house will replenish the exhausted treasury.

THE JOHN BROWS FUND .- We have seen two West Indian merchants who have just arrived from Havti. One of them, who is an accomplished and educated gentleman and a cousin of President Geffrard, informs us that when he left Port-an-Prince, two weeks ago, the contributions of coffee for the benefit of John Brown's family amounted to about 2,000 bags of 120 pounds each, and it was the general opinion that another thousand bags would be added, as every body regarded it both a duty and a privilege to con tribute. As these bags are worth from $12 to $14 each, it is probable that the Republic of Hayti will add to the John Brown fund from $30,000 to $40,000.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT .- Yesterday morning about o'clock, as the Hudson River Railroad train was on its way from Chambers to Thirty-second street, a man attempted to cross the track in front of one of the care, near the corner of Hudson and Capal streets, whon, the driver endeavoring to check the car by turning his Lorses aside so as to prevent any disaster, one of the animals fell, dragging the other three with it. The car passed over the four, killing one and injuring the others severely. The car was thrown off the track, but no other accident occurred.

ATTEMPT TO COMMIT SUICIDE .- Yesterday after noon, a woman giving her name as Mrs. McFay, with her child, was observed by a man named James O'Brien to run down James street at an extraordinary pace. Supposing that something was wrong, O'Brien followed her across South street to the end of the pier, and just caught her arm in time to save her from plunging with her child into the river. She accounted for taking this step by saying that she had a worthless and drunken kneband who seldom did anything toward the support of her or her child, and that they had passed days and zights in a cold and cheerless garret without anything to eat, and without a prospect of any better treatment, and she thought that she and her child would be better off dead than alive. It is stated that the poor woman had become insane in conse quence of harsh treatment. She is to be sent to the Asylum for the Insane, and the child will be cared for by the proper authorities.

Mass Meeting of Women-Sempathy with the Women on a STRIKE IN MASSACHUSETTS,-Lust evening a meeting of young women was held in Botanic Hall, East Broadway, Mr. Charles McCarthy in the chair. After stating the object of the meeting, the Chairman called upon Mr. Nugent, who moved the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved. That we, the ladles of New York do sympathize with our sisters now on a strike in the New England States, and we will aid and assist them all in our power wh'le this strike The Chairman immediately appointed the following

The Chairman immediately appointed the following women members of that committee:

Mrs. Negant, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Seymont, Mrs. Fitzgersld, Miss J. McCarthy, Miss Pearl, Miss Saith, Mrs. J. Moste, and Mrs. Hagne.

Mrs. Hagne said that she was opposed to women being engaged to perform any labors apart from their domestic daties; but where they were competied to work for employers, by reason of widowhood or other affliction, she believed they had at least a right to receive a fair day's wages for a fair day's work. She considered that it was the duty of the women of New-York to contribute geoeronaly for the support of the women of Massachusetts. She for one was willing to do anything that would tend to ameliorate the coadition of her sex anywhere and every where.

A collection was taken up, which amounted to $1.33. About 40 women were present. The meeting adjourned, to meet in the same place next Monday night, when the committee will report progress.

A RAILROAD IN BROADWAY.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune.

Siz: The writer of this has the strongest reasons for believing that a plan is formed and in the course of perfecting to obtain from the next Legislature a franchise for a railroad through Broadway. (How many millions will it be worth!) The Com Broadway. (How many millions will it be worth?) The Common Council and the owners of lots on that street can forestall these gentlemen by organizing a company to build such road, if they go to work at once and conclude the thing. How stupid men must be to oppose a railroad through Broadway? Any one can see that it will relieve the street, and do it most effectually, by superseding omnibuses, hanks and, to a great extent, private carriages. If such railway is of the most perfect construction, with sizel rails, accurately laid, and with "Ericsson's" locomotion—as sure and managable a motor as horse power—why Broadway would at once become almost as quiet as the streets in Venice, and as clean. Does it not argue simplify to oppose a railroad in this great thoroughfare? There will be one within a year and a haif. The question is who will have it—the public or the speculators? This must be determined by the land-holders. I would sugges that a railroad company should be obliged to run baggage-cars, as trains to accommodate travelers, to and from the depots, &c., at proper hours.

Minor Police Items — Thomas Geary was detected on Sunday night, in the act of stealing $60 worth of goods from Henry J. Wright of No. 37 Fulton street. The prisoner was committed to answer. Officer Lyon, or Sunday, streeted a man named John Suckley, on suspicion of stealing a horse which he had in his possession. The prisoner was unable to give any astisfactory ergisensition regarding the animal, and he was accordingly etained.... Gustavis Hymen, a young Pole, was arrested yeaterday, changed with baving violated the lottery laws, it appears that he circulated rumors among some of his friends to the effect that he had drawn a rich prize in one of the Georgia lotteries. This so worked upon their cupidity that two of them give the lucky Pole $6 each to invest for them in a like manner. After setting the money, Hymen disappeared, and was only found yesterday, when a complaint was lodged against him by his victions. Justice Connolly committed him to answer..... On Sunday evenine, eight young men, named Joseph Yellow brick, abraham Solomon, Jacob Hunger, Jacob Bensett, Abraham Stearn, Lewis Cole, Lewis Solomon, and Nosh Livingston were found playing cards for money at No. 26 Mulberry street. Officer Costello of the Sixth Ward made a deceed upon them arrested the whole party, and selzed their cards and money. Justice Lonnolly required them all to give bail to answer a charge of disorderly conduct.... A burglar named Abraham White was committed to the Eleventh Precinct Statis-those on Sunday night but managed to escape a few hours later. On vicining his cell, the padlock was found to have been wrenched of, and the prisoner names. Such inscent quarters should receive the attention of the groper autorities. OFFICERS IN ATTENDANCE UPON THE COURTS .-By one of the provisions in the recently amended Metropolitan Police Law, the Constables who have heretofore attended upon the Criminal Courts in Kings County are replaced by the police. The law goes into operation immediately. In the Court of Sessions there vere some twelve constables, and in their stead half the number of policemen will be detailed for the next term by the Inspector of Police. The bills of the constables last year for attending upon the Upper and Lower Courts, amounted to $30,000, which sum will now be saved to the county. This is a reform which has long been desired, as it is well known that the petty criminal business in the Police and Justices Courts has heretofore consisted largely of cases trumped up by constables playing into each others hands for the purpose of making fees. The amended act cuts off all this abuse. The office of constable will not be worth

THE COURTS.-The business of the April Term of the Circuit Court was finally disposed of yesterday by the Circuit Court was finally disposed of yesterday by Judge Lott. The next term will commence on the first Monday in May, before Judge Scrugham. The Court of Sessions will be opened before Judge Garrison and associates on Monday next. There are some sixty indictments, which will all be pressed for trial during the term. The offenses comprise arson, burglary, grand larceny, assaults, and other felonies of about the same grade. There are no indictments for murder or mauslaughter, although there are a few for assault and battery with intent to kill. ## THE ALMS-HOUSE COMMISSION.

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune. SIR: In your comments on the appointment of Isaa-Bell, jr., you say let "by-gones politically be by-gones." Be it so; but is it worth while to give a person $3,000 per annum, with the fact of his having perpetrated a great wrong recently, and not yet atoned for it, to pay for a by-gone?

The political division of the Board I approve of, and one of the Democrats, Mr. Nicholson, I have known long and well, and have great confidence in him, personally and publicly. Moral influence, I suppose, has weight in the administration of a public institution. It will be a curious fact to know what the effect will be on those confined on Blackwell's Island when they inquire which is the Governor who has done his best to ullify law.

Mr. Haws and his advisors have in this appointmen

Mr. Haws and his advisers have in this appendixed done a wrong to the Republican party, and to the right. The party cannot carry everything, and what with the dissatisfaction of the proceedings at Albany and such acts here, it will require some of my earnes ness to vote the ticket hereafter. Yours truly,

GEO. W. BLUNE.

[Mr. Bell has been appointed, not to please Mr. Blunt or the Republicans, but the Demograts; and he seems to answer the purpose. If so-and he is confessedly capable and financially trustworthywe submit that Mr. Blust's and other Republicans' dislike of him is immaterial. As to voting this way or that, let each of us continue to do just as he sees

DENOUEMENT OF THE BRENNAN TRAGEDY.

Elopement and Not Murder

THE PARTIES IN ITALY. THEIR IDENTITY CERTAIN.

Correspondence of The N. Y. Tribune.

Rowr. March 31, 1860. Eight months ago, I understood from a gentlemen who was not at liberty to tell me more, that Mrs. Brennan, whose mysterious disappearance from her home in Staten Islan i gwakened so much interest in New-York two years ago the 20th of next July, was living. From other sources I gathered that she had voluntarily left her husband for the sake of another man. Who that man was, and what the particulars of the story were, I did not learn, and therefore did not feel willing, upon such slight information, to make the matter public. But facts which have recently come to my knowledge, and will doubtless be communicated to the family, should be made known. A few weeks ago, as Miss ---, a young lady belonging to Philadelphia, was walking in Florence, she noticed a person who was the image of Mrs. Brennan, whom she had long since given up for dead. Passing her, she turned back in order to meet her again, and dissipate or confirm her suspicions. Thus she managed to see the face distinctly three times, both ladies being unveiled. Miss knew Mrs. Brennan intimately, having been with her for two continuous months, the Summer before her disappearance, traveling, and at watering places. Miss --- was much attached to Mrs. Brennan, whom she describes as extremely bright and pleasant, and is ready to take her outh that the woman she met in Florence was she. A few days afterward, Mrs. ---, Mics --- 's mother. who was also of the Bedford Spring party, met a woman whom she recognized as Mrs. Brennan, on the Ponte Vecchio in Florence. She took her by the wrist and exclaimed "Mrs. Brennan!" The only reply was a death-like paleness. The man with whon the supposed Mrs. B. was walking took to his heels at Mrs. -'s saintation. A third and a fourth time this woman was seen by mother or daughter in Florence—always in company with the same man, always after the first occasion veiled, and always distinctly recognized as their old friend Mrs. Brennan. Miss - describes her as short of stature, with light hair and eyes, and an unusually low forehead; but no personal description can be so satisfactory as the declaration of a respectable lady who knew Mrs. Brennan so well.

At Naples, Miss and Mrs. — saw the couple twice, once in the street, and again at the Musco Borbonico, and there Miss — told the story which she bad mentioned in Florence to two United States army officers, friends of Capt. Brennan, and of the Cranes, Mrs. Brennan's father and brother. As it happened, these gentlemen took passage for Rome on the same steamer with the suspected couple, and sat opposite them at the table d'hôte. Both recogn'zed her, from Miss - 's description, and one noticed a strong resemblance in features to Dr. Crane, Mrs. Brennan's brother, while the other was struck by the likeness to her father, now, I believe, deceased. Capt. - describes the woman in question as about 25 or 28 years of age, sallow-faced, with leaden, fishy eyes, light hair, and on the whole rather proposessing features. He noticed a wart or nole on one side—he believes the left-of her nose, another near the eyebrow, and another behind the ear. At Civita Vecchia Capt. -and his companion took the first train for Rome, but not finding the couple in the cars, inferred that through fear of meeting the army officers, they had waited till the next train-a delay which no one who has seen Civita Vecchia, can believe it possible to make without

So far nothing was known of the companion of the supposed Mrs. Brennan, and it was believed that he was not the same with whom she had left America. But the passport system, bad as it is, blows some good. Capt. ——, immediately upon his arriva!, went to Mr. Glentworth, our Consul here, and told him what he knew. Out of fourteen passports, sent Mr. G. by the police, one was suspicious. It was dated June, 1859, and was made out in the name of Powell T. Wyman. But in the visé of Mr. Spencer, our Consul at Paris, avec Helen sa femme was inserted, and the equivalent Italian expression was added to the American visé at Naples. Last Monday a valet de place came to Mr. Glentworth to get this passport viséd for France and Sardinia. The Consul objected view with Mr. Wyman. That gentleman appeared at 6 o'clock, when Mr. Glentworth informed him that if he wished the visé to cover two persons he must take sh affidavit that she was his wife. At first Wyman blustered, that it was not requisite, and that no other Consul bad demanded it; but after some furthe talk, changed his front, affirming that he had already taken the requisite oath at Paris. At length, however, he wrote out and signed a declaration that the woman, in whose company he was traveling, was his wife. The passport was then vised, and Mr. and Mrs. Wyman took steamer on Wednesday.

But on Tuesday another recognition took place. As Miss ----, with two other ladies, and her father and mother, were coming out of the Academy of St. Luke, the foremost of the party recognized Mrs. Brennan in a woman just stepping out of a carriage, as if to enter the Gallery. Miss --- spoke to her father, who was in the rear, but before he could reach the door the woman saw who was coming, stepped back again red drove off. The — s drove after them, but as the passed, the supposed Mrs. Brennan covered her veiled face with her paracol. Since Wyman's departure, some light has been thrown upon his personality. A man named Powell T. Wyman graduated, according to the Army Register, at West Point, in 1850, and is now First Lieutenant in the 1st Artillery, in which corps Mr. Brennau is Captain. Army officers here say that Lieut, Wyman had difficulty with Capt. Brennan, touching his wife, in Florida, some months before her disappearance, and that he obtained the leave of absence to come abroad through political influence at Washington, after it had been refused him by Gen. Scott and Col. Thomas. The passport of the Powell T. Wyman recently in Rome does not, however, state he is an army officer, and no one in Rome knows the Lieutenant so as to identify him. The suspected Mr. Wyman is described as a slim, lantern-jawed man, with a sandy complexion and a thin, light beard; he wears eye-glasses or spectacles. It is probable that, if he had been suspected of being an officer while here, there would have been some conversation between him and Captain -

Whither the couple have gone is not known.

Whether they are both the suspected persons is, perhaps, not positively certain. I give the facts as stated at first hand, and I leave you to weigh them. Taey may, at all events, give a direction to the search which I believe is still prosecuted in New York, and may belp to clear up a "mysterious disappearance" which, it planued, was advoit, and another testimony to the ingenuity of a woman with a purpose. You remember how she made her call, and missed the boat at which she was to meet her mother; and how a woman like her took a later evening bort which touched at a point at some distance from her home; and how she, or ter counterfeit presentment, drove off with an unknown man, to whom she had not been seen to speak on the boat; and how, from that moment for many months, no clue to Mrs. Brennan's whereabouts was given. How long she stayed in some out-of-the-way place in America, or even in New-York, under what passport she reached Paris, and was joined there by the man who now calls her his wife, are questions which, if the woman traveling with Powell T. Wyman be Mos Brennan, time will probably answer. But if the persons who have awakened suspicion are innocent, they will anrely, for the sake of dispelling so sad a cloud of mystery, bear with a mistake, which has not been committed without strong show of reason.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

THE ST. GEORGE'S DINNER.

The 74th annual dinner of the St. George's Society was eaten last evening at Delmenico's, corner of Chambers street and Broadway. The dining-room was decorated with fisgs, English, Irieh, and American, and the splendid portrait of Queen Victoria by Winterhalter, from behind the President, watched over the fete. Dr. J. W. Brales, who was reclected President of the Society in January last, presided.

Among the invited guests, and seated at the principal table, were the Rev. George C. Pennell, Chapiain to the Society; Consul Archibald; Mr. R. W. Russell, the New-York correspondent of The London Times Mr. John Johnston of the St. Andrews Society; Mr. Jakob Windmuller of the German Society; Mr. W. C. Barret of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick; Mr. John R. Brodhead of the St. Nicholas Society; Commodore Breeze; the Rev. Dr. Vinton; the Rev. T. G. Salter tables were decorated with a number of appropriate ornaments. Dod worth's Band contributed to the dinner some of their choicest melodies.

Breeze; the Rev. Dr. Vinton; the Rev. T. G. Salter of Dover, N. H.; Mr. Philip Pritchard, Secretary to the Board of Deputies of the various Bensvolent Scieties, and ex-Judge Whiting. More than 100 gentlemen sat down to dinner.

The dinner was the production of that wonderful cook, who has at his fingers' ends the 13 volumes of Caréme, and it was worthy of him and them. The tables were decorated with a number of appropriate ornaments. Dod worth's Band contributed to the dinner some of their choicest melodies.

The assemblese was called to order after 9 o'clock. After the singing of the Non nobis Domine, the President congratulated the members of the Society on their assembling again, and trusted that they should have many other opportunities of doing the same thing. He thanked his bretheren of the Society once more for the oft-repeated, but not the less appreciated, honor which they had conferred upon him in elevating him to the Chair. He was happy to say that their example in forming a Soren of the Society once more for the oft-repeated, but not the less appreciated, honor which they had conferred upon him in elevating him to the Chair. He was happy to say that their example in forming a Society for the benefit of their destitute countrymen, was rapidly being followed throughout the United States. Within the last week applications had been made for copies of their Constitution to form Societies in Clackination to form Societies in Clackination to the Charity Committee present whom he did not see at the business meetings, and he must be pardoned a few words of business. The funds of the Charity Committee had been terribly broken down by the number of claimants which they had thought it necessary to assist. He wisned particularly to call their attention to the Permanent Fund. It had been the great object of their Tressurer to increase the Permanent Fund so as to make the interest arising from it sufficient for the objects of the Society. Most of them were aware of the munificent donation of $1,000 lately made to the Permanent Fund. Another member offered another thousand if eight thousand more could be raised, making $10,000 in all. There was another business point of interest, the union of the Benevolent Societies to protect foreign emigrants on landing in this country. Their delegates had been elected to very prominent positions in this Union. Directly, the Church of St. George the Martry had nothing to do with this Society, but not withstanding that, they had a very great interest in its welfare. It originated in the bosom of this Society, and it had the privilege, in conjunction with the Consul, of obtaining four free beds in St. Luke's Hospital. But they had a still more jovial side; they met here and among themselves to endeavor to increase good feeling and fellowship among their members. They met here particularly annually to renovate their feelings of affection toward their mother country. He thought these meetings did that. England was now happily free from war, but she was making ready

Mr. Archibald, H. B. M. Consul, in responding to Mr. Archibald, H. B. M. Consul, in responding to the toast, said it was always most gratifying to the representatives of her Majesty in the United States to be borne in kindly remembrance by the Sens of St. George of New York at their anniversary featival; and on behalf of those who were absent, as well as for himself, he begged to thank them for the honor of the toast just proposed, and for the cordial manner in which it had been received. He was quite sure that no one felt a more lively interest in the welfare of this patriotic and benevolent Society than the distinguished nobleman who was her Majesty's chief representative in this country, and whose devotion to the ardaous duties of his post alone prevented their having the ple saure and benor of his presence to-day. In acknowledging the members of the Consular body in this country, he (Mr. A.) would only add a few words to say how heartily he concurred in the observations which, among others, the President had happily addressed to them, and in which he held up to their continued regard them, and in which he held up to their continued rea and admiration the institutions of that glorious ountry which they this day delighted to honor. egislative institutions and forms of government of the nost favored countries with those of his native land, the most favored countries with those of his native land, the more would be have reason to rejoice in the great and enviable superiority of the British Constitution to all others—a Constitution under which the rights and liberties of Britons are secured by a firm, enlightened, and impartial administration of justice, and by legislative institutions, whose deliberations are uncontrolled by the dictation of tyranical power on the one hand, or by the influences of a sordid selfishness on the other; a Constitution which provides by aparantees. the nation may require can, with the free and deliberate assent of the people, and without those revolutions which sgitate the rest of Europe be adopted in such manner as to bind all classes the closer in the promotion of the common weal. Might they not then reasonably feel proud of a Constitution under the influence of foremost nation of the world in freedom, in science, in commerce, and in the arts of science, in commerce, and in the arts of peace. As one among other illustrations, he would point to the present free and enlightened commercial system of England—a policy by which, at some sacri-fice, though with infinite honor to herself and ad-vantage to the whole world, she is extending and inwhich are eminently calculated, more, perhaps, than any other human agency, to insure the blessings of peace, and to bind in friendly union the civilized nations of the earth. He need hardly add, he said, that in the present attitude of the affairs of the world, when thrones were tottering and falling to the ground, and when dark clouds were lowering over the destinies of kingdoms and empires, it was of the greatest importance to the interests of mankind that the pres-sent happy frienship should become the more firm and sent happy frienship should become the more firm and lasting between this great country and his own, already united as they were by some of the closest ties which can link together two families of the human race; and animated, as he trusted they also were, by sentiments toward each other of which the truest and most touching exponent were those few magical words spoken on the banks of the Peiho by the brave and gallant latnall, at a time and under circumstances which brought them home with electric force to the hearts of the whole nation, upon which they are too deeply imprinted ever to be forgotten. In conclusion, the propose as a toast:

The British Constitution—The great bulwark of the liberties of the world. [Long and continued applause.] The Consul's sentiment was drunk with loud cheer The Armies and Navies of Great Britain and the United tates-May they never meet but as friends.

Commodore BREEZE responded briefly. Their friendly sentiments, he said, were cordially responded to, and met with the most cordial appreciation. He concluded with the sentiment:

The gailant Navy of Great Britain—Which has borne in triumph and in bonor to every clime and sea the glorious flag of old England, the red-cross bannes of your patron saint.

6. Our Sister Societies. [Many cheers.]

After a glee, Mr Johnstone responded on behalf of the St. Andrew's Society, giving in conclusion: Britain—The maxon Bibls which she gave to the world has nade her great in the nobiest sense of the word. Mr. W. C. Barner of the Friendly Sous of St. Pat-Mr. W. C. Barret of the Friendly Sons of S. Patrick responded. He labored under great embarrars ment in appearing as one of the sons of a priest who, not to speak of a wife, never had even a housekeeper or a niece. He palmed off the Irish buils upon the English, and concluded with:

Prince Albert—the Prince of Wales. [Loud cheers.]

Mr. John R. Brohenead of the St. Nicholas Society responded, giving:

Health and Prosperity to the Members of the St. George's Society of the City of New-York. [Load ebecring.]

Mr. Jacob Wesnmullare of the German Society responded, closing with:

May the St. George's Society always go ahead in benecolence. [Load applause.]

7 The Statesmen of Great Britain.

The Rev. Dr. Vinton responded—He thanked the Secretary for this opportunity of returning his thanks for the honor done him in redicating him as one of their chaplains. He rewinded the members of old times, when he was chaptain before, and vindicated the character of Awerican statesmen. He told a story culminating in the definition of demagone, as one who has "a single eye" to the public good. This reflection on Fernando, taken in connection with the omission of "the Mayor of New-York," although it was printed among the toasts, indicates that the St. George's Society does not sympathize very strongly with the hero of Marvine and the Joseph Walker, of Connectiont and of Charleston. Dr. Vinton concluded Connecticut and of Cherleston. Dr. Vinton concluded by an eloquent eulogy on English statesmanship.

The Glee Club sung "A Bumper to the Fair."

The festivities were prolonged by volunteer toasts and songs to a very late hour.

BROOKLYN COMMON COUNCIL.

The Board held a regular meeting last evening.

A petitition from John Linskey was presented, asking for the privilege of running a ferry from the foot of North Sixth street, E. D., to New-York. The following the control of the con of North Sixth street, E. D., to New-York. The following resolution was offered in connection therewith:

"That permission be and is hereby granted to John Linskey and associates to use the silp at the foot of North Sixth street. E. D. for the purpose of running a ferry boat themce to the City of New-York, and that the Corperation Connel be directed, under the direction of the Committee on Ferry and Water Rights, to execute a lease of said slip to John Linskey and associates for the term of ten years from the 1st of May next, conditioned that said ferry will be run within one year, and that no higher rate of fare will be charged thereen than is now charged upon the ferries of the Union Ferry Company, and that the fixtures thereon will belong to the city at the expiration of that time.

The matter was referred to the Committee on Ferry and Water Rights.

The Water Commissioners were empowered to remove gas lamp poets where they interfered with the

and Water Rights.

The Water Commissioners were empowered to remove gas lamp posts where they interfered with the sewer basins at the intersection of the streets.

Mr. Douglass offered a preamble, setting forth the utility of a Free Academy, on the principle of the one in operation in New-York; and a resolution directing the erection of a building, to be devoted to similar purposes in this city. The subject was referred to the Committee on Arts and Sciences.

A Committee cor sisting of Mesers. Furey, Jenkins, and Franks was appointed to examine the accounts of the special Committee on Ferry and Water Rights relative t, expenses incurred at Albany.

Mr. Douglass offered a resolution to the effect that the sale and use of comphene and burning-fluid be prohibited in this city. The matter was laid over.

The subject of fixing the water rents was then taken up under the head of special order, and discussed at length until a late hour, without any definite action.

SUICIDE OF A MEDICINE PEDDLER IN REDBANK. N. J .- On Sonday evening, about the hour of sunset, the citizens of the quiet village of Redbank were startled by seeing a horse attached to a peddler's covered wagon, galloping through their principal street, with apparently no driver to guide his course. Stopping the animal, they found the owner lying in the bottom of his wagon, just breathing his last, with a ghastly wound in his right temple, evidently the result of a pistol shot. The man was borne into Atkin's tavern, close by, where he soon died, and Coroner Borden was summoned to hold an inquest over his remains. On examination, about $50 in bills were found in his pocket, together with letters and documents, which made it probable that he belonged to the firm of Sterling & Bros., Trenton. A six-barreled revolver was found n the wagon-floor, with four barrels loaded, and two discharged. In his luggage a single barreled pistol was also discovered. The Arst-named weapon was marked with the initials "W. S.;" these letters were also on the clothing of the deceased. In a memorandum book, taken from his person, appeared the following "I am sure I have taken only freshly-made entry: one drink to-day, and that was some cider at Mr. Davidson's 'l Verdict of the Jury: " Death, resulting from a pistol shot, self-inflicted, or by some person or persons unknown."

THE MYSTERIOUS MURDER OF A FEMALE.-The Coroner's Jury, in the case of the murdered female found in the dock at the York-street pier on the 14th inst., met again last evening at the Station-House in Jersey City. Coroner Morris stated that he had no further evidence at present to offer touching the mystery, but that efforts were still being made to identify he body and ferret out the perpetrators of the crime. He therefore deemed it advisable to again adjourn the inquest to Monday evening next, at which time the investigation would be brought to a close.

A NEW ESTERPRISE .- A mass meeting was recently held in Egg Harbor City, N. J., to take steps toward raising means for the purpose of building a steamboat to ply between that place and New-York. In addition to the steamboat it is proposed to build a railroad track six miles in length, running from the Camden and Atlantic road to the steamboat landing on Mullica or Little Egg Harbor River. It is calculated the cost of the enterprise will be $40,000.

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.—On Saturday last, as the 7 a. m. Dunkuk Express train on the New York and Erie Road was rounding a curve near the Goahen depct, a girl 13 years of age, daughter of Richard McGowen, was struck by the locomotive, throwing her some fifty feet, and causing injuries that resulted in her death a short time afterward. The girl was walking on the track for the purpose of ascertaining if her father, who is a brakeman, was upin a freight tain which was coming in at the time from the opposite direction. An inquest was held, and a verdict of accidental death rendered.

At Paterson, the same day, a boy, whose name was not ascertained, was killed by attempting to jump upon some cars attached to the drill-engine, but missing his hold, fell under the wheels and was instantly killed.
